CARTANG VS. SHAW—ANOTHER CHAPTER—Counsel for Mr. Shaw yesterday niled counter aftidavits to those hereforere filed by counsel for plaintiff in support of the pending motion for a new tral. The new trial is claimed on various grounds, the most huperion of which is the misconduct of jurors. It is charged that opinious were expressed before and after the empanching of the jary inconsistent with an unbiased decision of the case. The jurors named are Autone Gens, John T. Carter, and Charles schiller. It is charged that from, the evening the jury was sworn, and after the close of Mr. Homes' opening speech, said to Richard S. Taylor, at Florrissant, that the plaintiff "would not get a cent." The defendant files an affidavit of Gens denying the charge point blank. get a cent." The defendant files an affidivit of Gens denying the charge point blank.

Against John T. Carrier it is alleged that last May or June he said to A. R. Havenner, that the $100.000 on the first trial, was a singular verifiet, and that he didn't regard Miss Carstang as a decent woman. Carter, likewise, dentes 14-ls statement; never speaking, as he affirms, to Havenner on the subject, though the latter may have heard him speak to others about it; but this was last June, and could not influence him on the second trial.

OUR LADIES' COLUMN. A Little Gem. The following tender lullaby, played upon the heart strings, will make every woman who reads it want a baby to sing it to:

ant a beby to sing it to:

Cometo my arms, you bewildering elf
Let me gather you, body and soul, to mys.
Bury your scintillant eres and hair.
And all the glory and grace or crown,
From winking feet to germson gown,
Leep in the follows to my bosom and bear.
A thing of my holiest belug a part;
Crooning a song in the older to hyme.
Tendor and sweet as a vesper-chime.

Sleep, baby-boy;
The little birds rest,
Downy and soft,
In the mother-bird's nest;
The lambkins are safe
in the shepherd's warm fold,
The dew-drops asleep
In the butter-cup's gold.

The violet nods
To the daisy's dream;
The lift has hushed
On the lap of the stream;
And holy and vaim,
Like motherly eyes.
The stars hok down
From the silent-klos

Steep, haby boy, My birding, my flower, My hiy, my lambkin, My dew-drop, my dower! While heart against heart Beats softly in time

To the muraining thow

Of my tender old rhyme.

THACKERAN ON CHARLOTTE BRONTE.—Lean only say of this lady, vidit tordum. I saw her first just after I rose up out of an illness from which I had never thought to recover. I remember the trendling little frame, the little hand, the great honest eyes. An inquetuous honesty seemed to me to characterize the woman. Twice I readlect she took me to dask for what she held to be errors in doctrine, three about Fielding we had a disputation. She spoke her mind out. She jumped too rapidly to conclusions. (I have suiled at one or two passages in the Biography, in which my own dispusition or behavior forms the subject of talk). She formed conclusions that might be wrong, and built up whole theories of character upon them. New in the London world she entered it with an independent, indomitable spirit of her own, and judged the centemperaries, and especially spied out arrogance or affectations with extraordinary keetiness of vision. She was angry with her favorites if their conversation fell below her Ideal. Often she seemed to me to be judging the London folks prematurely, but perhaps the city is rather angry at being ju ged. I fancied an austerelither Joan of Are narching in upon us, and relinking our casy lives, our casy taroads. She gave me the impression of being a very pure, and loffy, and high-minded person. A great and holy reverence of right and truth scenarol to be with her always. Such, lu our brief interview, she appeared to me.—Corabid Magazine for April.

The slender thread of silk or cotton keeps them united with the small, familiar, gentle interests of life, the continually operating influences of which do so much for the health of the character, and carry off what would otherwise be a dangerens accumulation of morbid sensibility. A wast deal of human sympathy runs along this electric line, stretching from the throne to the wheleer chair of the immblest seamstress, and keeping high and low in a species of communion with their kindred beings. Methinks it is a token of healthy and gentle characteristics, when women of accomplishments and high thoughts love to sew, especially as they are never more at home with their own hearts than when so occupied.
